Logo Elements

The primary logo lockup is comprised of two elements; the logotype and logomark. The ‘lockup’ refers to the size and positioning of these three elements relative to each other. Where possible and appropriate, the positive logo should be used.

As detailed in the following pages, these elements can be used independently, but when paired together as the primary logo, their relationships should not be altered in any way.

Logo Variants

POSITIVE LOGO
The positive logo is typically for use when the logo appears on a white or light colour background. It should never be used on dark background and should only be used on colour backgrounds that achieve AA accessibility standards.

REVERSED LOGO
Our reversed logo is for use on dark backgrounds, typically on our brand blue or gradient. As the Align brand colour balance favours our brand grey, the reversed logo with grey text should will be used more than the positive logo. More details on colour usage can be found in the following pages.

Application

A ‘whiteout’ version of the logo should be used when colour is not appropriate or contrast is an issue. This version should only be used on dark backgrounds.

Similarly, a monochromatic grey version of the logo can be used where more appropriate.

Secondary Logo Lockup

A secondary lockup of the logo is available that features an alternative layout that can be used when needed.

Logotype & Web Address

Where needed and appropriate, the Align logotype can be used independently of the logomark and icon. When displaying our web address (e.g. as part of a vehicle decal) a bespoke web address logotype graphic can be used.

Clearspace & Size

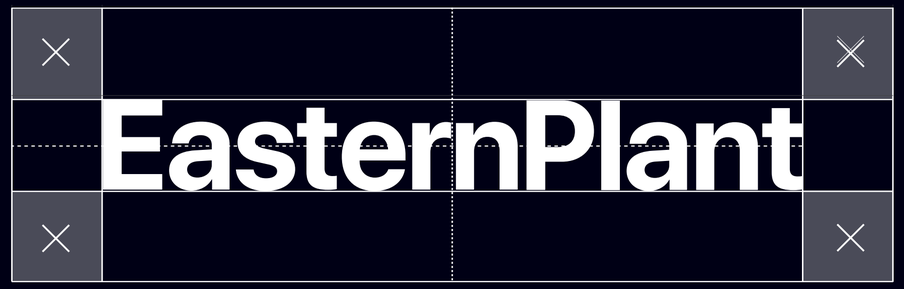
CLEAR SPACE
The ‘clear’ space is designed to protect our logo from any encroaching elements that may jeopardise its integrity or legibility. The size of clearance (x) is relevant to the size of the logo, equal to the height of the ‘a’ in the logotype.

This clear space should be observed when using the primary logo, secondary logo, and when using the logotype independently.

MINIMUM SIZE
To ensure our logo remains legible when reproduced, a minimum size is defined for both print and digital use.

These rules should be observed when using the primary logo, secondary logo, and when using the logotype independently.

Print: 20mm wide
Digital: 130 pixels wide



Logomark

Where needed and appropriate, the Eastern Plant logomark can be used independently of the logotype and tagline.

Do not rotate the Logomark.

Do not pair the logomark incorrectly with other logo elements.
